

MAKING THE GRADE: In a ranking by the nonprofit National Palliative Care Research Center, New Hampshire was one of only three states to receive an A for its palliative-care services; the other two top-ranked states were Vermont and Montana.

An alliance by any other name . . .

When the clock strikes midnight on New Year's Eve, the 25-year-old Dartmouth-Hitchcock Alliance (DHA)—a consortium of 11 health-care organizations in New Hampshire, Vermont, and Massachusetts—will have a new structure and a new name: the New England Alliance for Health (NEAH).

Since its establishment in 1983 as the parent holding company for Mary Hitchcock Memorial Hospital (MHMH) and Alice Peck Day Memorial Hospital, the DHA has grown to include nine hospitals, a behavioral health service, and a visiting nurse association. Alliance members save money through group purchasing; collaborate on quality improvement, patient safety, and staff training and recruitment; and share financial and technology expertise.

Plan: It was partly a new Dartmouth-Hitchcock strategic plan that led to the restructuring of the Alliance. After January 1, 2009, as a limited liability company owned and managed by MHMH, NEAH will give Hitchcock more flexibility in developing legal and organizational relationships outside the Alliance. Stephen LeBlanc, DHMC's chief operating officer, will be the NEAH's executive director.

Word: The limited liability structure will benefit members, too. As a parent holding company, the DHA technically had the final word on members' budgets, trustee appointments, and strategic plans. But since the DHA board rarely exercised that power, some members felt the oversight process was unnecessarily bureaucratic. The NEAH will not have any power over members' decisions.

All current members of the DHA have agreed to participate in the new organization. In addition to MHMH, they are New Hampshire's New London Hospital, Upper Connecticut Valley Hospital, Valley Regional Health Care, Weeks Medical Center, and West Central Behavioral Health; Vermont's Central Vermont Medical Center (CVMC), Mt. Ascutney Hospital, and Northeastern Vermont Regional Hospital; the Visiting Nurse Association and Hospice of Vermont and New Hampshire (VNAH); and Massachusetts's Cooley Dickinson Health Care.

Cost: "It was a pretty simple decision" to remain a member, says Judy Tarr, CEO of CVMC in Barre, Vt. The NEAH "is providing the same services to us that the DHA was providing . . . at a little bit lower cost."

Tarr adds that some people were concerned "about losing the name of Dartmouth-Hitchcock because the name itself is so well-respected." But she says the change "didn't get as much buzz, I think, in the community as we thought it might get." CVMC has not yet removed the DHA name from its signs; Alliance members have until the end of 2009 to do so.

A plus of the new name is that it "opens up the possibility for people" not nearby to "feel more included," notes Gaye LaCasce, the VNAH's vice president of development and community relations.

Join: Other area hospitals will "absolutely" want to join the restructured Alliance, feels Bruce King, CEO of New London Hospital. "Taking away the governance controls has made other small hospitals feel more comfortable" about the organization, he says.

Although DHMC isn't "out there selling the [NEAH] right now . . . people are calling us," notes Deanna Howard, DHMC's vice president of regional development. The renamed and reorganized "Alliance is still designed to be a collaborative forum where we can move forward efforts to improve patient care [and] the health of the population we serve," she says. "And that's really fundamental to the work of Dartmouth . . . to the work of all the members."

KATHERINE VONDERHAAR

Worthy of note: Honors, awards, appointments, etc.

John Wennberg, M.D., M.P.H., the Peggy Y. Thomson Professor of the Evaluative Clinical Sciences, received the Institute of Medicine's prestigious Gustav O. Lienhard Award for "reshaping the U.S. health-care system" so treatment decisions are based on objective evidence and outcomes rather than physician preference.

David Nierenberg, M.D., the Edward Tullloh Krumm Professor of Medicine and senior associate dean for medical education, received Alpha Omega Alpha's Robert J. Glaser Distinguished Teacher Award, one of the nation's highest medical teaching accolades. Nierenberg was lauded "for the clarity and passion of his lectures."

Daniel Longnecker, M.D., a professor of pathology, received the Vay Liang and Frisca Go Award for Lifetime Achievement in Pancreatology from the American Pancreatic Association.

Elmer Pfefferkorn, Ph.D., a professor emeritus of microbiology and immunology, was awarded a medal at the international Toxoplasma Centennial Congress.

William Green, Ph.D., the dean of

continued on page 58

The Dartmouth-Hitchcock Alliance has a new name but the same membership.

WillowBrook Prosthetics & Orthotics

Robert Diebold, C.O., Orthotist • David Loney, C.P., Prosthetist

190 Hanover Street • Lebanon, NH • 603/448-0070

Worthy of note

continued from page 21

DMS and a professor of microbiology and immunology, was elected to the national council of the Institutional Development Award's Principal Investigator Association.

Gregory Tsongalis, Ph.D., an associate professor of pathology, was named president of the Association for Molecular Pathology.

Mark Israel, M.D., the director of the Norris Cotton Cancer Center, was named finance committee chair of the Foundation for Advanced Education in the Sciences.

Douglas Goodwin, M.D., an associate professor of radiology, received the Outstanding Teacher Award of the International Society of Magnetic Resonance in Medicine.

Michael Zegans, M.D., an associate professor of surgery, received the American Academy of Ophthalmology's Achievement Award.

Julie Sorenson, M.D., M.P.H., an assistant professor of anesthesiology, was elected to the board of the American Pain Society.

Lisa Sutherland, Ph.D., a research assistant professor of pediatrics, was selected as a member of the U.S. delegation to the Joint FAO/WHO Food Standards Programme of the Codex Committee on Nutrition.

Brent Harris, M.D., Ph.D., an assistant professor of pathology, was appointed to the course directors' strategic planning committee of the Association of Pathology Chairs.

Samuel Bakhoun, an M.D.-Ph.D. student, received the American Society for Cell Biology's Norton B. Gilula Award.

Courtney Kozul, a Ph.D. student in experimental and molecular medicine, received the New England Membrane Enzyme Group's Karen Wetterhahn Award. She also won Best Oral Presentation honors at the International Central and Eastern European Conference on Health and the Environment.

DHMC's Cystic Fibrosis Center was recognized in the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation's first annual Quality Care Awards.

DHMC Media Services received a bronze medal in the 29th Annual Telly Awards for a video titled "The Functional Restoration Program at Dartmouth-Hitchcock." The project was the work of Thomas Kidder, director of media services, and John Gormley, Andy Hamel, and Donna Darling.

Thomson Reuters recognized Dartmouth-Hitchcock Medical Center as one of the top 100 U.S. hospitals for cardiovascular care in 2008. ■

Dr. Seuss comes to the Dartmouth Coop with Stoo-pendous Things for your entire family!

Thing 1 and Thing 2 Tees.
100% cotton 6.1 ounce heavyweight.
Seamless collar. SU106. $19.95.
youth XS(2/4), S(6/8), M(10/12),
L(14/16), XL(18/20).
Infant 6, 12, 18 Months.
Toddler 2T, 3T, 4T.

Women's "Green Eggs and Ham" Fitted Tee.
Stylishly contour fitted and made from 100% cotton, this Dartmouth shirt features Sam's Friend on the front and the perfect Seuss "Green Eggs and Ham" saying on the back. S-XL. SU100. $24.95.

"On the Places" Youth Tee. 100% cotton, on a heavyweight grey shirt. Youth S-XL. SU102. $19.95.

Dartmouth Coop.com

All items are produced under license from the Trustees of Dartmouth College and a portion of each sale goes to support the programs and students of Dartmouth College. Dr. Seuss properties TM & © 2007 Dr. Seuss Enterprises, L.P. All Rights Reserved.